Vision Statement

Como is a place of cozy homes, tree-canopied streets and delightful gardens, where people come and decide to stay for generations. The people of Como - families, owners, tenants, landlords, and businesses - are committed to cooperatively working together to continue to improve the quality of Como as a secure, comfortable, and vibrant place to live, work, invest, play and study. Como is conveniently located and pedestrian friendly, where residents and businesses are good neighbors in a healthy environment. Our school and park are great and the opportunities for the people of Como are getting better every day.

Neighborhood Introduction

Location & Boundaries

The Como Neighborhood (also called Southeast Como) is in southeast Minneapolis about one mile north of the Dinkytown commercial area and the east bank campus of the University of the Minnesota. Como is transected by its namesake, Como Avenue, and by East Hennepin Avenue. Its boundaries are the city limit to the east (near Highway 280), the Southeast Industrial Area to the south of Elm Street, Interstate 35W and the Burlington Northern mainline to the west, and the Mid-City Industrial Area to the north.

Demographics

According to 1990 US Census figures, 5,407 people made their homes in the Como neighborhood, in 2,257 housing units. The 2000 US Census showed Como with a total population of 5,691 residents (an increase of 5%) living in 2,342 housing units (an increase of 3.7%).

The ethnic/racial makeup of the neighborhood was 83% white, 10% Asian, 4% African American and 2% Native American in 1990. In 2000, the diversity in the neighborhood had increased as the ethnic/racial makeup of the neighborhood shifted to 80% white, 10% Asian, 6% African American, 3% Hispanic/Latino and 1% Native American.

According to the 1990 US Census, 69% of Como was under 35 years old (36% at 25-34 years old) and 8% was 65 or over. In 2000, the percentage of residents under the age of 35 had risen to 76% while the elderly population, those over the age of 65, had fallen to 5%. The average age of a Como resident in 2000 was 24.7 years of age. This reflects a fundamental shift in the neighborhood from a balanced residential neighborhood to a rental based, student housing-dominated neighborhood. The 6 years since the last census have produced an even larger shift towards rental property and a younger population in SE Como. Most of this is anecdotal evidence, but SECIA is confident that the 2010 census will corroborate the continuing ownership shift in the neighborhood.

Housing conditions in Southeast Como are a large concern to SECIA and the entire neighborhood. Under the Community Development Block Grants program, Southeast Como's classification has been downgraded from Protection Status to Targeted Status - recognition of the worsening property conditions in the neighborhood. In 1990, the SE Como housing stock was 38% owner occupied and 59% rental units (4% of the housing units were vacant). According to the 2000 US Census, the owner occupied units had fallen to 36%, while rental units made up the remaining 64% (by 2000 the vacant units of 1990 had been filled).

The median Southeast Como mortgage in 1990 was $67,750, nearly tripling to $175,000 in 2002. This is a partial reflection of the speculative nature of the current housing climate in the neighborhood: landlords are buying properties at inflated values and in turn charging higher rents to tenants. Rental prices have skyrocketed, with a 267% increase from 1990 to 2000 in the number of tenants paying more than $1,000 in rent (68 cases in 1990 to 250 in 2000). Tenants are forced into over-occupancy to make their rent for each month, placing more strain on the properties (originally designed for single-family use). This in-turn decreases the safety of the tenants living in cramped conditions (often without modifications in safety measures and egress points), and exacerbates the livability issues for both the tenants and their neighbors (including parking issues, noise complaints and refuse removal).

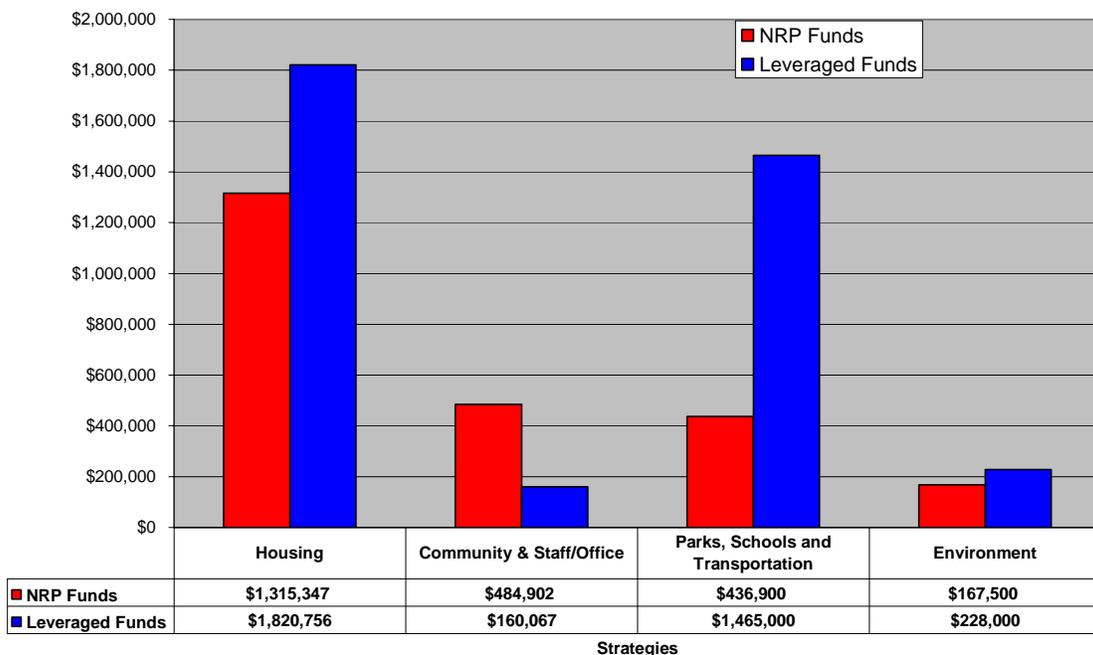

Neighborhood Organization

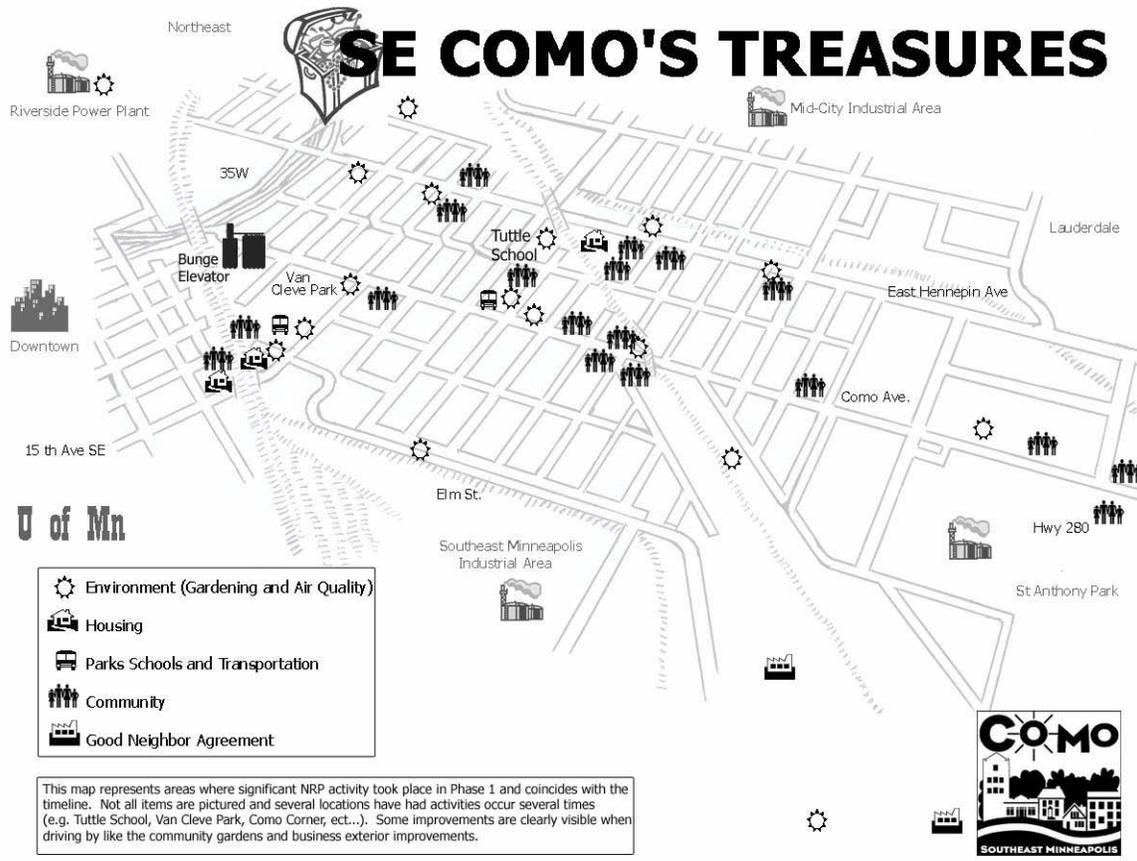

The Southeast Como Improvement Association (SECIA) has actively advocated for neighborhood issues for more than 25 years. SECIA is open to anyone who lives in the neighborhood or who represents a business, church, civic organization, or other entity located within its borders. Over the years, membership and board representation have come primarily from homeowners and businesses. People of color have been represented on SECIA's board in rough proportion to their numbers in the neighborhood. Recently two board positions have been created for the University of Minnesota's Student Association Representative and the University of Minnesota's Graduate and Professional Student Assembly Representative to provide a tangible presence on the board for the students of the neighborhood.

NRP Phase I

The SE Como neighborhood has benefited greatly from the Neighborhood Revitalization Program. Van Cleve Park is stronger than it has been in years, due in part to the NRP money dedicated to improving the park's grounds and providing additional funding to support the highly successful Youthline position. Tuttle Community School was able to transition from an elementary school to a K-8 Program with the aide of NRP dollars in constructing a new science lab. SECIA's Community Garden Organizer and dedicated volunteers have earned numerous awards for the ten community gardens in SE Como. The Environment Coordinator of SECIA has leveraged limited NRP dollars into millions of dollars of improvements at local industries. The program has been so successful that these "Good Neighbor" industries have become some of SECIA and SE Como's strongest supporters. SECIA's Housing Committee, in conjunction with the Center for Energy and the Environment, has awarded over 270 home improvement loans totaling over $1,800,000 in leveraged funds. Communications and public input have been enhanced through SECIA's website and monthly newsletter. SE Como's citizens are more involved, better informed and taking a more active role in their City than ever before. These achievements would not have been possible without a fully funded NRP Phase I, or without the dedicated and resourceful staff that SECIA has employed to implement the Phase I Plan.

Leveraged vs. NRP Funds

Phase II Planning Process

SECIA began the NRP Phase II Planning Process in the spring of 2005. Surveys (Appendices B) completed at events beginning in April (The Bagel Give Away) and continuing through the Como Cookout in September were collected and tabulated. SECIA also finished its NRP Phase I Review in September of 2005 and began writing its NRP Phase II Participation Agreement, approved in November of 2005. The collection of surveys continued through 2005 and early 2006. One of the goals of the Phase II Planning Committee was to incorporate more feedback from the University of Minnesota students that make Como their home. This was accomplished by administering the SECIA Phase II Survey at the Annual meeting of the Como Student Community Co-operative, the largest concentration of Graduate students living in the neighborhood.

At the November 1st 2005 SECIA Annual Town Hall Meeting, the SECIA Phase II Planning committee was established. The nine members of the committee were elected from those individuals in the community interested in guiding the Phase II process. All members of the community were eligible to be elected to the Phase II Planning Committee, and the opportunity was advertised in the local newsletter, The Comotion, on the SECIA website, and in SECIA's electronic newsletter, The Tidbits.

The SECIA Phase II Planning Committee held their first meeting on February 22nd, 2006. The Committee began its work by tabulating and distilling the information provided from the surveys collected over the past year. Based on the information in these surveys, as well as information supplied by the standing SECIA committees (Housing, Safety & Livability, Environment, History, Party Task Force and the SECIA Board) the Phase II Planning Committee created a list of the primary concerns and projects that the Como neighborhood felt were of the highest priority. These eight categories (Appendices C), and potential strategies associated with each, were then presented to the community at large as a starting point for discussion.

A Town Meeting to review the potential strategies and solicit more input from the community was held at Van Cleve Park on May 4th, 2006. This meeting enabled the community to comment on the eight categories presented by the Phase II Planning Committee and to offer new ideas. Community members voted for the four strategies that were the most important to them.

This information was used to begin writing the actual language of the Phase II Plan. The Phase II Planning Committee drew on relationships established during Phase I – especially with the Center for Energy and the Environment, the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board, The Minneapolis and University of Minnesota Police Departments and the Minneapolis Library Board – to lay a framework for the writing of the Phase II Plan. SECIA staff and members of the Phase II Planning Committee immediately began working on the first draft of the plan. The first plan outline and budget (Appendices A) were presented to the Phase II Planning Committee on June 21, 2006. Through continual feedback from the community at large, the SECIA Board, and the standing SECIA committees, the plan was refined.

At the August 8th SECIA Board meeting, a draft of the Phase II Plan was approved for presentation to the community. That version of the Phase II Plan was then made available to the public through the SECIA website and the SECIA office. At the scheduled October 10th Community and Annual Meeting, the neighborhood approved the Phase II Plan. The SECIA Board then approved this final version of the Phase II Plan in a separate vote also held on October 10, 2006.

NOTE: The following yearly allocations for each strategy are not intended to be a rigid budget. Instead, they are a guideline to follow during implementation.

Environment Goal I: Enhance the overall environmental quality of the SE Como Neighborhood by supporting community members in their efforts and providing leadership, expertise and resources to enact needed changes that will improve air and water quality.

Strategy E1. Good Neighbor Agreements & Pollution Reduction

Continue fostering relationships with the local business community and work towards air emission reductions along with principals of sustainability. This includes involving and educating residents about air pollution issues related to businesses in and around SE Como. The funds will primarily go towards the position of the environmental coordinator to continue this work – which also leverages considerable outside funding.
