

Bed Bug Hideouts

Bed bugs are often found in bedroom box springs, mattresses, bed frames and bed head boards. However, they are not only confined to the bed. The following photos provide show examples of other bed bug hideouts. Ultimately, a bed bug can make a home out of any object.

Photo courtesy of Dr. Steven Kells, director of University of Minnesota's Let's Beat the Bug!

Adult, baby and adolescent bed bugs congregate in the corner of a door frame. The black dots are fecal matter from the bed bugs.

Photo courtesy of Dr. Steven Kells, director of University of Minnesota's Let's Beat the Bug!

Bed bugs are excellent hitch hikers. Backpacks (as pictured above) and luggage provide mobility for bed bugs, allowing infestations to spread.

Photo courtesy of Dr. Steven Kells, director of University of Minnesota's Let's Beat the Bug!

Bed bugs are often found inside electrical outlets. The inside of an electrical outlet makes a comfortable home because bed bugs can live without being disturbed.