

Kentucky Coffeetree
Gymnocladus dioica

50-60'h x 30'w
Energy Savings, Native

Don't be intimidated by the meager looking "stick" when you pick up this soon to be stately tree. A late bloomer every year, with a slow growth rate, it will reward your patience with interesting flowers and architecture when mature. Plant this native in an open location on the west or east side of your home.

Prairifire crabapple
Malus 'Prairifire'

15-20'h x 15-20'w
Showy, Wildlife

A small, rounded tree with brilliant red flowers emerging in the spring. With its disease resistant purple foliage aging to red-green and persistent red fruit, this full-sun loving tree provides year round interest. This tree is perfect as a focal point for any garden.

Northern hackberry
Celtis occidentalis
40-60'h x 30-50'w
Shade tree, wildlife

A large, native tree, perfect for a yard in need of shade! Interesting corky bark appears as the tree matures. This tree produces a small fruit enjoyed by many types of wildlife. Tolerant of a wide range of soil conditions and does best in full sun. For maximum energy conservation, plant this excellent shade tree on the west or east side of your home.

River Birch
Betula nigra

50'h x 40' w
Energy savings, conservation

What grows just as well along rivers as it does in your yard? The answer is this multi-trunk tree. Borer beetles won't appreciate this tree, but you will enjoy its yellow fall color and peeling, colored bark. Save energy with this year-round beauty by planting on the west or east side of your home.
