Gift acceptance for City staff travel expenses to Washington D.C. in June 2016

Description:

Accepting a gift of $1,250 from the National Academies of Science, Engineering and Medicine for the travel of Andrea Larson, Results Management Program Coordinator in the City Coordinator's Office, to Washington D.C. for a 2-day Resilient Communities Roundtable June 28-29, 2016.

Previous Actions:

None.

---

Ward/Address:

Not Applicable

Background/Analysis:

Andrea Larson, Results Management Program Coordinator in the City Coordinator's Office, and the National Academies of Science, Engineering and Medicine are a members of the Community Indicator's Consortium, which seeks bridges that span the gap between community indicators use and performance measurement. Through this consortium, they have identified a relationship between the City's Community Indicators and Results Minneapolis and work being done by Resilient Communities. This conference offers an opportunity to share work being done on measuring community resilience and to find new ways of moving from reporting data to using data to take actionable steps in the community.

Financial Review:

No financial impact.
