

Shellstock Tags

Foodborne illnesses like Vibriosis happen. You are required to keep your original shellstock tags organized to help investigate and stop outbreaks.

If you sell shellstock, you must:

1. Reject shellstock deliveries without original tags.
2. Keep the tag with the shellstock until the container is empty.
3. Write the date on the tag when the last shellstock is sold.
4. Keep the tags in date order for 90 days past the day the container is emptied.
5. Never combine different containers of shellstock.
